LYNCHING AN OUTRAGE SAYS GOVERNOR WHO ONCE SAVED FRANK

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 17.—Ex-Governor George M. Slaton of Georgia could not find words strong enough, he said today, to condemn the lynching of Leo M. Frank, whose life Slaton once saved by commutation of death sentence.

"Every good man and woman in Georgia will condemn this cowardly abduction," said Slaton, an exposition visitor. "The English language is not strong or broad enough to designate this outrage appropriately. It is an attack on civilization.

"I know Georgia well enough to believe that every power of the state will be brought to bear to punish the malefactors who have so disgraced the commonwealth. Men who would do this sort of thing are the same sort that would kill women and children, and murder men from behind a fence.

"The words I speak here I will repeat at home."

The United Press was the first to inform Slaton of the finding of Frank's body.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 17.—With Leo M. Frank dangling from a tree in a coarse prison night dress, manacled, barefooted and smeared with his own blood, in the outskirts of the neighboring town of Marietta, and his widow, at Milledgeville, close to death from grief and horror at his dreadful end, Atlanta experienced a revolution of feeling today.

The very men who were bitterest in their denunciation of ex-Gov. Slaton for saving Frank from legal execution a few weeks ago were in many cases crying today for vengeance on last night's lynchers and more particularly on the prison farm officials who permitted, without a blow and scarcely a word in his behalf, their helpless and wounded ward to be dragged from their very presence to his death.

The body was finally cut down after speeches had been made by a number of persons in the crowd.

One address was by a Marietta man, said to have slapped Detective William J. Burns' face when Burns was investigating the Frank case here. He urged that the body be mutilated. Judge Morris spoke in opposition to this, urging that order be maintained.

After the entire crowd had voted against mutilation, the body was lowered from the tree and lifted, in a basket, into a wagon which started for Marietta, where it was announced an inquest would begin at noon.

During the progress mutterings in favor of mutilation began to be heard again, so Judge Morris ran his automobile alongside the wagon, lifted the corpse into the car and sped, not toward Marietta, but in the direction of Atlanta.

Some 200 automobiles gave chase. At Smyrna, Rogers Winter, a newspaperman, who accompanied Judge Morris, leaped from the latter's car and rushed for a telephone to notify his paper in Atlanta that the body was coming and that it was being pursued.

There were several thousand persons about the tree when the body was cut down. Despite Judge Morris' pleadings several men in the crowd leaped forward as the body lay on the ground and stamped on the face with their heels.

The wagon into which the corpse was lifted, the property of a Marietta undertaker, made the start for town at top speed, but the crowd took after it pell-mell in automobiles and buggies and on foot. It was then that Judge Morris, speeding his machine alongside, took the body into his own charge.

Though Frank's body was known to be in Atlanta, its hiding place was kept secret.

An Atlanta undertaker met Judge Morris' automobile, which brought the corpse from Marietta's outskirts at the Chattahoochee river between Atlanta and Marietta, transferred the body to his ambulance and sped into the city far ahead of the pursuing automobiles.

Frank's face, it was stated, was badly crushed by the heels of persons who jumped on it when his corpse was cut down.

His shirt sleeves were ripped off for souvenirs and many persons spat on his body.

It is estimated that there were 5,000 to 10,000 in the throng at the time, including many women and children.

The governor's secretary notified the latter of the lynching by telegraph and received an answer ordering a full investigation and strenuous efforts to apprehend the lynchers.

Marietta was the home town of Mary Phagan, the lit-

Handcuffed by Lynchers and Forced to Watch
Frank's Abduction

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 17.—The following graphic account of the abduction of Leo Frank from the Georgia State prison farm is given by Superintendent J. M. Burke of the institution who was overpowered by the mob and forced to watch Frank taken to his doom:

"I was called to the door of my house just as I was preparing to retire and stepped outside.

"The moment I had crossed the threshold two strong men grabbed me and in an instant snapped handcuffs on my wrists. Four others stood guard over me with two shotguns and two with heavy pistols.

"When I remonstrated they said it was no use for me to squirm, as they had come for Leo Frank and were going to get him.

"I told them Frank was not at my house, and they said they knew that, but they were going to take me to the prison.

"I was taken to the prison, where I was kept in a cell for several hours.

"I was then taken to the prison, where I was kept in a cell for several hours.

ored Member of the G. A. R.

Hon. Lemuel B. Cox, twice member of the Wisconsin assembly and several times member of La Crosse county board from Onalaska and Farmington, died at 5 o'clock last evening at his home in that city where he had lived the last twelve years of his happy and useful life.

The end came much as he might have wished it to be, surrounded by the entire membership of his loving and appreciative family. There was the wife of his young manhood who first saw him deliver a Fourth of July oration at a celebration on the Jesse Johnson farm in 1879. She was Sarah Jane Hartley. On March tenth the next spring they were married.

There was Mary, his oldest daughter, now the wife of one of the prominent business men of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Griswold; his only son, Reuben, a prominent lawyer from Clinton, Okla.; Mrs. Lester Gould and two maiden daughters who still claimed his roof as their shelter, Miss Helen and Miss Gladys.

The life story of this loving husband, kind hearted father and prominent citizen goes back to the very beginning of this community. He came here sixty-three years ago at six years of age with his father Samuel B. Cox, from LaGrange, Walworth county where he was born January 21, 1846. The Samuel Cox family settled in Stevenston and Lemuel settled in clearing what is now one of the best farms in La Crosse county which he has owned until within the last three years and where all of his children were born.

At the age of 18 years he enlisted in Company K Second Wisconsin cavalry and was honorably discharged at the close of the war having participated in engagements at Yazoo City, Egypt Station, Benton-ville and several other smaller cavalry encounters. He was educated at Galesville university and taught school several terms in Rochester, Minn., and in La Crosse county country schools.

In 1892 he was elected to the assembly from La Crosse Second district and re-elected in 1894. Mr.
Cox was a republican. His political views were formed during the days of national distress when men voted the way they shot. During the later days of his political activity he was better known as a "stalwart republican" and up to the moment of his last illness he never lost interest and was active in the councils of his political faith.

Mr. Cox was a member of the Wilson-Coleman A. R. Post of this city and the Picket Post of Onalaska.
During the Roosevelt administration he served three years in the government Indian service being located at Keshena and Oneida, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox were prominent members of the First Congregational church of La Crosse. The funeral will take place at 2:30 p. m. from the Methodist church in Onalaska on Thursday.

WITNESS ORDERED OUT OF TOWN IS CHILDRESS CHARGE

Negro in Cell When Defendant Was Arrested Says Dugan Told Him to Leave

TESTIFY TO CELL BEATING

Deposition of John Ryan Swears That Three of the Policemen Had Been Drinking

A warrant for the arrest of George C. Childress, former mission evangelist and one time book agent, charging him with assault and battery and with threatening to kill Matt Berthn Sunday night was secured at 11 o'clock this morning by Berthn.
Berthn is manager of the Alamo, a North Salem road resort.

The warrant was secured by Berthn just three hours before the continuation of Childress' trial in county court for operating an automobile while intoxicated. The warrant was served in the court room.

That Larry Dugan, captain of police, ordered James Johnson, colored servant in a prominent family here for three years, to leave town following his calling as a witness for the George C. Childress trial in county court yesterday, was charged in testimony given by Johnson at yesterday afternoon's session of the trial.

In substance, Johnson's testimony was that Patrolman Blaine Thompson and William F. Wermuth had beaten Childress after they had lodged him in a cell in central police station. Johnson was occupying the cell in which Childress was placed.

"The first thing I knew," said Johnson, "was when Childress was thrown in on top of me, swearing and fighting because he didn't want to be put in a cell with a 'nigger'.

"Give me the key and I'll clean the ——" Johnson testified he heard one of the policemen say just before he opened the cell door.

"Did Larry Dugan tell you to get out of town?" asked Attorney F. E.
Whitrow, counsel for Childress.

"Yes," he said, "You're a bad actor and better blow or we'll get you."

Testify to Beating

The testimony of J. H. Knothe, printer, and John Ryan, Mineral Point, Wis., also in central police station when Childress was brought in, was taken yesterday. Ryan's testimony was in the form of a deposition.

Knothe testified that the policemen called Childress "bad" names.
"They wouldn't look good in print," said Knothe to questions of Attorney Whitrow as to what the names were.

According to the testimony of Ryan, Thompson struck Childress as he pushed him into the cell with Johnson.

Ryan's statement said three of the policemen in the cell room were drunk. Ryan testified that he had been drunk many times and could have told whether Childress was intoxicated.

Trial Still On

The state rested its case early in the afternoon session yesterday, and the first of a score or more of witnesses for the defense were called upon. The trial was continued at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the case came to the jury after the hearing of a few more witnesses.

Childress, who is charged with driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition, was not called to the stand yesterday. His testimony was expected this afternoon.

The state's evidence to prove that Childress was drunk closed with the testimony of William Manning, fireman; Blaine Thompson, patrolman;
Duke Arneson, patrolman and Dr.
J. A. Rowles.

Dr. Rowles testified that Childress had a black eye, that his nose was out, and that he had bruises on one hand, the side of the face and head when he was called to attend him.

Might Have Been Nervous

"Could Mr. Childress have acted like a drunken man through the treatment he received at the hands of the policemen?" Attorney With-row asked. Dr. Rowles answered that he could have been made very nervous.

Josie Tenney, the first witness for the defense, night waitress at the Henry and Frank restaurant, testified that she saw Childress walking to the station with policemen, and that he was not staggering.

Louis Olson, saloon keeper on South Third street, told on the witness chair that in his opinion Childress was not intoxicated.

Say He Was Sober

tified that Childress had been in his

GALVESTON SWEEP BY 90-MILE GALE CITIZENS FLEE

Fierce Storm Revives Memories of Former Disaster and 5,000 in Terror
Leave Shores

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 17.—Wire communication, lost to Galveston and Houston last night, had not been re-established early today but the last reports from those cities indicated there was no loss of life and but slight property damage. The wind at Galveston is reported to have attained a velocity of from 65 to 75 miles an hour, with occasional gusts reaching ninety miles.

Five thousand persons living along the shore line in Galveston moved to the interior of the city during the afternoon and night and hundreds are reported to have fled to Houston.
Several sections of Galveston were in darkness because of the lighting system's wires being down. The gulf storm evidently cut but a narrow path in the vicinity of Galveston and Houston as wires are down only in that immediate section.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 17.—
A wireless from the United States transport Buford at Galveston to the army radio station here reports that the water rose ten feet in the harbor there and that several vessels were turned over. No loss of life was reported.

AUTOS MUST NOT DROWN MUSIC IS POLICE COMMAND

Automobiles will not be allowed to move in Riverside park tonight while the concert of the Third Regiment band of Viroqua is going on. This was the order today of Chief of Police John B. Webber.

Patrolmen will be stationed at the park tonight to carry out the order that the band music must not be interrupted.

Automobile drivers may take their cars into the park before the music begins, says Chief Webber, but they will be requested to stay there until inter-missions.

The concert tonight promises one of the big musical treats of the summer band concert program. The band is famed all over the state and plays prominent parts in large public gatherings.

ROYAL EDWARD SUNK ENROUTE TO DARDANELLES

Admiralty Report Says 600 Men Are Known to Have

Second Troop Vessel Lost by England Since the War Began; Carried
1,350 Soldiers

BULLETIN

BERLIN, via Wireless to London,
Aug. 17.—The forts defending Kovno have been stormed and captured by German troops under General von Eichhorn, it was officially announced this afternoon.

Three of the forts on the northeastern front of Novo Georgiewsk have been stormed and captured by the Germans the official statement also reported.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—About 1,000 lives are believed to have been lost by the sinking of the British transport Royal Edward enroute to the Dardanelles Saturday by a German submarine.

The Royal Edward carried 1,350 soldiers, 22 military officers and a crew of about 250 men. An announcement by the admiralty said 600 are known to have been saved.

The Royal Edward was "sunk" in the Aegean sea Saturday presumably while enroute to the Dardanelles. Because of the fact that she is a large vessel it is believed that she carried several thousand troops and that the loss of life was large.

This is the second transport lost by Great Britain since the war began. In an engagement off the Turkish Asia Minor coast, near the Gulf of Smyrna, a transport was sunk several weeks ago, but without heavy loss of life, according to the admiralty statement.

Presumably the former Canadian Northern liner Royal Edward of Toronto, Canada, was the vessel torpedoed. She was an 11,117 ton steel triple screw steamer owned by the Canadian Northern Steamship company and is understood to have been commandeered by the British government for use as a transport at the beginning of the war.

Russ Begin Evacuation

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The Russians are beginning to evacuate the fortified railway center of Bielostok, one of the vital points on the Kovno-Brest-Litovsk line before the onward rush of Von Hindenburg's armies.

Dispatches from Petrograd today said the big machinery works at Bielostok have been dismantled and removed to the interior and the municipal palace emptied of its art treasures. A large part of the civilian population has fled.

Military men here took this and the Russians do not intend to hold the Kovno-Brest-Litovsk line. Bielostok, forty-five miles east of Lomza, is the junction point of the great Warsaw-Petrograd railway and its retention is necessary if the Brest-Litovsk line is to be held. Consequently the opinion was expressed here that the grand duke has found it necessary to continue his retreat eastward.

On Both Russian Fronts, the Austro-Germans are now attacking with greatest violence.

Petrograd claims the repulse of all attacks in the north but is silent regarding the operations south and west of Brest Litovsk. Berlin advices today reported Bavarian troops closing in on Biala, twenty-seven miles west of the fortress with Austro-German forces barely twenty miles away on the southwest.

Italians Win Steadily

ROME, Aug. 17.—By scaling treacherous heights and taking enemy positions at the point of the bayonet, Italian Alpini are systematically closing in upon Plezzo.
Dispatches today said the bombardment of the Plezzo forts has continued for forty-eight hours without interruption.

Greece "Peace" Minister Out

ATHENS, Aug. 17.—King Constantine today accepted the resignation of Premier Gounaris who headed the "neutrality" ministry. The king invited former Premier Venizel-os, leader of the so-called "war party," to confer with him today, presumably to form a new ministry.

RE-STOCKING OF 2,000 MERCHANTS

DETROIT, Aug. 17.—To renew the stocks of more than 2,000 merchants who, two weeks ago had absolutely nothing to sell, and to do it in the shortest possible time is the task with which the Maxwell Motor Co. is now engaged. Its efforts in large quantity production of the new 1916 cars form one of the most interesting phases of the motor industry.

When the new Maxwell was announced, the company's dealers had been for several weeks entirely sold out of cars. Their salesrooms presented in the aggregate hundreds of acres of polished floor space, unoccupied by rolling stock of any sort. The dealers knew the new cars were coming and had been booking orders for them but the sales were made on the basis of Maxwell reputation alone. They had nothing to show or to demonstrate.

But President Flanders' production staff stole a march on his sales and advertising agents by getting the Maxwell plants here, and at Dayton and Newcastle, into the full swing of work several days before the cars were formally announced. The date of the announcement found the plants producing more than 200 cars a day. Shipments were already on

Daddy's Bedtime

The Cow That jumped Over the Moon. Tra La.

"LET me see, children," said daddy, with a smile. "I think tonight that I will tell you part of an old Mother Goose rime in the fashion of a verse."

"Oh, goodie!" cried Jack and Evelyn. "We like those, daddy."

So daddy told them the funny little story in just this style:

"Now once, as sure as you are born, there lived a cow with a crumpled horn, milked by a maiden all forlorn."

"And every eve her horns she'd toss when maiden called, 'Co, boss; co, boss!'"

"And then the pasture green they'd cross."

"This bossy liked the grass which grew, to please her taste and soothe her view the farmer's finest pasture through."

"But on a certain summer night the cow ate on with all her might and no fair maiden came in sight."

"The cow at first she did not mind because the maiden lagged behind, but soon she missed the damsel kind."

"This cow was peevish as could be and asked: 'Where is my maiden? She should be by now a-milking me!'"

"So feeling that she'd like to cry, so lonesome that she thought she'd die, she looked right up into the sky."

"And while the evening breeze did croon and all the frogs did sing a tune, down at that cow did gaze the moon."

"The cow looked in that jolly face that grinned at her far up in space and said: 'I never saw that place.'"

"Perchance that girl who should milk me has stopped up there to have some tea. I think I will go up and see."

"So sure as this old world is round that cow, with one tremendous bound, rose right up off that pasture ground."

"Up through the summer night she scooted, while doggies barked and owlets hooted in trees all green and deeply-rooted."

"Past twinkling stars that cow did fly, shot like an arrow through the sky, and cried out, 'How is this for high?'"

"She never touched the moon, this rover; forth from her field of fragrant clover she'd jumped so hard she jumped clean over."

"And now's the funny part, my dears. It really has been quite some years since bossy leaped, and it appears the moon is quite so far away; she's going yet, or so they say. She is not back unto this day."

"And in the field a crone forlorn—it's been some time since she was born—awaits her cow with the crumpled horn."

"Whys" of Moves in European War

By J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The German offensive against the Russians is being effectively checked at both flanks and indications are abundant that the Teutonic power of attack is weakening.

In particular Marshal Von Hindenburg, who commands the northern army in the present drive is failing to do the work assigned to him. The Russians have rallied in exceptional strength against Von Hindenburg, not only because he threatens Riga and the entire Baltic coast, but also because he will be in a position to isolate Petrograd if his plans are allowed to mature.

Shortage of ammunition is unquestionably hampering the Germans. Novo Georgiewsk and Govno continue to hold out against the Teutonic assaults, although neither fortress has the resisting power which Antwerp possessed, but which was so quickly overcome by the Germans earlier in the war. The principal reason for the more successful defense of the Russian fortresses is undoubtedly the present Teutonic difficulty of obtaining sufficient shells.

The Germans are unquestionably storing a large part of their new ammunition to resist the possible Anglo-French offensive in the west. The Galician drive and the capture of Warsaw used up most of the winter and spring accumulation of supplies and not even German manufacturers can produce shells as quickly as they can be shot away.

There must be long intervals of comparative inactivity to permit the war factories to catch up with the field armies. One of these intervals is now taking place among the Germans in Russia. They are waiting for more shells, and at the same time, they must subordinate their demands to the necessary for increasing the reserve supplies along the western battle front.

The Russians must be given high praise for the stubborn fighting qualities they are showing. There is no evidence of demoralization in their ranks; and if the eastern conflict is to be fought to a finish it is becoming apparent that the Teutons will be very near to exhaustion themselves at the end. The Slav genius for defensive rather than offensive warfare has never been better exemplified than in the present campaign.

STATE OF WISCONSIN—In Circuit Court for La Crosse County.

The Security Savings Bank of La Crosse, a corporation, Plaintiff, vs. Charles M. Dow, Edward Lyons, Catherine Lyons, his wife, B. I. Bailey, and M. F. Bailey, and the Security Savings Bank of La Crosse, a corporation, Defendants.

By virtue of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, made and entered by the above named court on the 25th day of July, 1914, in a certain action then pending wherein the Security Savings Bank of La Crosse, a corporation, is plaintiff, and Charles M. Dow, Edward Lyons, Catherine Lyons, his wife, B. I. Bailey, and M. F. Bailey and the Security Savings Bank of La Crosse, a corporation, are defendants, I, George Ritter, as Sheriff of La Crosse County, appointed in and by said judgment for that purpose, will expose at public sale and sell at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, on the 14th day of September, 1915, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the west front door of the Court House in the City of La Crosse, La Crosse County, Wisconsin, the following described premises and real estate in said judgment described, and in and by said judgment ordered to be sold, situate, lying and being in the city and county of La Crosse, State of Wisconsin, to-wit:

Advice to Shipwrecked.

Some timely advice to naval men exposed to the risk of drowning owing to the vessel being sunk is given in the Lancet. The first rule is that the men should not on any account remove their clothing; the air entangled in it is only gradually displaced by water, and meanwhile it buoy the man up a little. A man should not try to swim except for some definite purpose, but be content to float and be satisfied if he can just keep his mouth above water. The best lifebuoy, short of a cork jacket, is a lashed-up hammock; it does not turn over and over like a cask, and there is always the lashing to hang on to.

At last he traced it through the Bronx and out along the roads through Westchester, feeling a growing interest in the chase. And, when, in the loneliest part of the highway, he came upon the ginger-colored limousine stranded by the wayside, while a remarkably pretty face looked anxiously from the window.

"Ha!" muttered Blake, as he slowed down beside the limousine. "The plot thickens. Enter the heroine!"

"What's the trouble?" he hailed cheerfully.

"A flat tire," she responded. "I don't think you can do anything, thank you. I won't detain you."

"But you can't remain here," protested Kenneth. "I'll change tires for you. Got a spare one?"

"I think so—but, please—if you will go on—we shall get along all right," she said nervously.

"Are you driving this car?" demanded the writer of detective stories. "Yes."

"With Mr. Kensington's permission?" he asked, regarding her keenly.

She looked thoroughly frightened. "Not exactly. How did you know it was his car?" she demanded defiantly.

"Because he called the police station and gave the number of the missing car."

"And you—you are the police?" she gasped in a horrified tone.

"Not exactly," he evaded, "but I am tracing the car. I think you better let me change the tire and then go back to the city with me."

"No—no!" she cried affrightedly. "I cannot do that. Oh, dear, what shall I do?" she sobbed softly.

"Let me change your tire—and you may go where you please," muttered Kenneth, gruffly, jumping from his machine. He thought it odd that the girl did not leave the car while he worked. It almost seemed as though she was on guard, so closely did she remain within the limousine, and when he had finished his task she held out her small gloved

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

LOST—A LIMOUSINE

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Mr. Kenneth Blake's library was a quiet dreamy place on this mid-summer afternoon. The famous writer of detective stories was drowsing over a pile of proof sheets and the sound of the telephone bell brought his well-shaped head up with a sharp jerk.

He pulled the instrument across the desk and took down the receiver. "Yes?" he inquired lazily.

"This," spoke a crisp, business-like voice at the other end, "is Henry Kensington, of 51 Wall street. Some one has gone off with my motor car a limousine, number 16,824. Have some of your men trace it, will you, please. It was standing at my office in front of my office down here—that you say, not police headquarters. Why didn't you say so before, confound your impudence, sir!" And the indignant Mr. Kensington rang off.

Kenneth Blake hung up the receiver, leaned back in his chair and laughed. "Wouldn't that get you?" he inquired of the empty air. Suddenly he stopped laughing and considered thoughtfully.

"I'm blessed if I don't trace that limousine myself," he decided. "Thanks to my habit of making notations on this telephone pad, I've got the car number, and who knows but what I may get a yarn out of it, although most likely it's only a case of sordid steal. My first visit will be to the traffic cop down there at Wall street."

Blake possessed a speedy little electric car of his own—one of the results of many detective stories well told—and in a short time he had left his home in Washington Square and had interviewed the traffic officer at the busy downtown corner.

Because Kenneth Blake had been born lucky, he obtained a faint clue. The officer had noted the number of car 16,824 because the driver had not observed the mighty wagging of his official thumb and had slipped around the corner and up Broadway like a flash.

"A big, ginger-colored car, sir," he explained to Blake. "I've telephoned ahead and they'll catch the fellow before he reaches Forty-second street."

Blake whirled around and bore up-town, pausing now and then to get news of the ginger-colored limousine; and always he heard of its speed, of its number being taken, but never was it arrested in its northward flight.

At last he traced it through the Bronx and out along the roads through Westchester, feeling a growing interest in the chase. And, when, in the loneliest part of the highway, he came upon the ginger-colored limousine stranded by the wayside, while a remarkably pretty face looked anxiously from the window.

"Ha!" muttered Blake, as he slowed down beside the limousine. "The plot thickens. Enter the heroine!"

"What's the trouble?" he hailed cheerfully.

"A flat tire," she responded. "I don't think you can do anything, thank you. I won't detain you."

"But you can't remain here," protested Kenneth. "I'll change tires for you. Got a spare one?"

"I think so—but, please—if you will go on—we shall get along all right," she said nervously.

"Are you driving this car?" demanded the writer of detective stories. "Yes."

"With Mr. Kensington's permission?" he asked, regarding her keenly.

She looked thoroughly frightened. "Not exactly. How did you know it was his car?" she demanded defiantly.

"Because he called the police station and gave the number of the missing car."

"And you—you are the police?" she gasped in a horrified tone.

"Not exactly," he evaded, "but I am tracing the car. I think you better let me change the tire and then go back to the city with me."

"No—no!" she cried affrightedly. "I cannot do that. Oh, dear, what shall I do?" she sobbed softly.

"Let me change your tire—and you may go where you please," muttered Kenneth, gruffly, jumping from his machine. He thought it odd that the girl did not leave the car while he worked. It almost seemed as though she was on guard, so closely did she remain within the limousine, and when he had finished his task she held out her small gloved

Heileman Office Picnic Halted By Acrobatic Caboose

But the Picnickers Pick Up Pete Valier's Palatial Coach And Put it Back on the Rails

The beauty of Camp Tate lured another picnic party Sunday when the office employees of the G. Heileman-Brewing company staged it to the camp in one of Pete Valier's caboose specials. The party reached Coon Valley without mishap but then—the special left the track as it was being sidetracked to allow the La Crosse bound train to pass. The derailment occasioned but a slight delay; the picnickers, it is said, picking the caboose up bodily and putting it back onto the rails.

Indoor baseball and refreshments formed the chief means of entertainment. The Germanians tramped on the Old Styles in two out of three games, winning the first 5 to 3, and the last by a score of 21 to 10. The second game went to the Old Styles, with a score of 7 to 3 attached to it.

Solie and Horne proved themselves iron men of the day, flinging all three games. The batteries for the Germanians were Solie and Jahn and Horne and Meinert worked for the Old Styles.

"Schmidt of the Germanians and Ridgeway of the Old Styles surprised the bunch, and even themselves, by their spectacular fielding. Bushman and Nelson umpired the fracas, and they still live," said one of the baseballers this morning.

ed hand through the lowered window.

"Please add one more kindness to the others," she pleaded.

He stepped back hat in hand. "What is it?"

"Please go back to town and forget me and the limousine. It is all right—it will be returned to Mr. Kensington before night."

"Very well," he nodded, and, climbed into his own machine, he turned about and went back to town, the memory of the girl's face driving all other thoughts from his mind.

Who was she and what was she doing with the ginger-colored limousine that belonged to the Wall street magnate?

At 11 o'clock that night he called up Henry Kensington's residence and ascertained that the missing limousine had been safely returned to its owner. The English butler was most emphatic in his protestations that the whole matter had been a mistake.

"It's quite all right, sir," he assured Blake. "Mr. Kensington made a mistake, that's all. Thank you, sir."

Blake hung up the receiver. "Jove, the girl was right, after all! I wonder just what excuse she could pull over on old Kensington?"

He was soon to discover, for within a fortnight he met the girl out at the Bayside Country club.

She was crossing the putting green, her scarlet blazer and white skirt making fine splashes of contrast against the green turf. He would have passed her, but she paused and put out a little sunburned hand.

"Thank you very much, Mr. Kenneth Blake," she said gravely.

"I am prepared to forget—if it is necessary," he said gallantly.

"Your father?"

"It is no longer necessary," she smiled. "My father knows all."

"Henry Kensington—I am Lucy Kensington. 'You thought I was an automobile thief, didn't you?'"

"At least an accomplice," he amended.

"I was and I was not. You see, my brother Bob is a wild, harum-scarum boy of sixteen. He was racing down in his little car and he was arrested by a traffic officer. He managed to escape and went to father's office. Just as we reached there he saw the police coming and he jumped into father's car at the curb and I got in, too, and we went to New Haven. He was inside the limousine on the floor, when you talked to me. You suspected something like that, didn't you?"

"I knew you were in trouble, and as I am a writer of detective stories and something of an amateur sleuth myself, I was interested, but—"

A faraway look came into Kenneth's eyes.

"But?" she prompted.

"But, do you know, Miss Kensington, I believe that this is going to be the most interesting plot I ever tackled—and surely the most complicated."

He had the grace to blush, then, for in the quick flash of her eyes he guessed that she had understood his meaning.

And it was a story that ended happily, too.

And it is sometimes said of a man that he drinks like a fish—but he imbibes a different fluid.

GOVERNORS TO TALK ON BETTER DEFENSE AT BIG GATHERING

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 17.—Thirty-six governors of as many states will meet in Boston August 24, 25, 26 and 27, to attend the annual session of the governors' conference, where they will hear and participate in the discussion of what the states can do to improve the national defense according to an announcement today by M. C. Riley, secretary of the conference.

"What the times and conditions have forced this subject upon the attention of the entire world, no governor so far as I have heard fears that the present world war will force the United States to adopt a policy of militarism," said Secretary Riley.

"However all governors feel that it is time that immediate steps be taken to develop a stronger and more efficient citizen soldiery. For this reason the relations of the state to the national defense has been given a prominent place on the program."

WELCOME VIROQUA

La Crosse people found delight in the excellent concert with which the West Salem Military band recently favored us in Riverside Park. This evening we are to be entertained by the Viroqua organization, the Third Regiment band, and to guarantee the entertainment is as unnecessary as to extol the merits of the band. Nor is it necessary to urge attendance for the crowd will be great. Suffice it to say that one who neglects to be present will sacrifice an opportunity. Good music, in the open air, down there in beautiful Riverside park, is a rare treat.

REVOLUTIONARY LEGISLATION

The freedom with which the legislature delegated to the governor its function of appropriating all moneys for public purposes suggests that, so far as this legislature is concerned, the trust was in poor hands and was properly relinquished; however, to have delegated it to a small group of men dominated by a single individual was a step which the people need not be expected to endorse. The bill passed without opposition, progressives having for the moment assumed that it constituted an admission by the administration that appropriations had been inadequate, and that to pass it would obviate the expense of a special session, but Senator Burke's amendment indicating that no extensive application of surplus to the state debt was now contemplated, served as warning that the administration is prepared to make free use of the blanket appropriation. Senator Boshard's motion to reconsider, made at this point, should have prevailed. Think of the situation! Institutions hampered by deficient appropriations; funds for relief in the hands of a single politician; a campaign approaching.

The legality of this remarkable piece of legislation may be an open question. The bill practically delegates authority which the legislature, under the constitution, can not delegate; it reposes in the executive and certain confers a power not designed for them and easily capable of abuse in their hands. On behalf of the people some citizen should file suit to test the validity of the act.

WHERE IS THE APPEAL OF WAR?

In their appeal to the stark virtue of courage and the lust of conflict more or less inherent in the human race war and the life military have undeniably exerted great popular attraction. "Have exerted" comes advisedly. The European war continues "ad nauseam" and the lessons of the battlefield are daily extracting whatever stern delights of modern warfare the schools of blood-and-iron theorists had not cast out in the days of peace.

We have grown used to khaki as a substitute for brass buttons and gold lace. We know that a modern engagement is a contest of ditch digging and that a formal battle with the enemies matching strength in the open is extant only in the movies. The thunder of charging cavalry has given way to the stuttering of motor-exhausts. Each of these improvements in the art of killing en masse subtracts its little from the "joy of battle." Now comes information from Berlin and London that the experts have condemned the rifle as a futile weapon. The machine gun is more effective. The Germans have developed a one-man machine gun, and the British are beginning to be as concerned over the paucity of the rapid-firers as over the dearth of ammunition.

Of the inspiring sights which give militarism a grip on the imagination one of the chief is a well-trained body of men at drill. The rhythmic co-ordination of the manual of arms, well-executed, has unquestioned fascination. And the drill of the foot-soldier, from the simple manual to the most complex formations, depends upon the light and handy rifle.

When the rifle is discarded, we shall still have drill, of course. But how can a machine gun, from its very nature a cumbersome bulk, be brought to a snappy "present"? There will be no dashing bayonet charges to fill with enthusiasm the soldier whose function it is to squat behind a garden-hose of death and squirt bullets at the enemy. Drill will have lost its attraction.

Drill, it may be admitted, is not an inherent necessity of war. But the pomp and splendors of which drill is a significant item, we submit, are essentials to militarism. Without them its true inwardness of savagery and inhumanity is too apparent for a people to stomach. And without national approval militarism is not.

THE CAR ON THE FARM

The Kansas City Journal finds that Kansas economists no longer complain that Kansas farmers are ruining themselves and the community by buying automobiles. It says Kansas now makes a good many of its own cars, and thus the money is kept in the state, and that everybody in Kansas is learning that an automobile, if its a moderate priced and dependable machine, is not a mere luxury or convenience, but a piece of machinery that pays its own way. Wisconsin farmers will bear this out. The big farmer saves a lot of time by joggling around his land or running in to town in his car. He saves the time of his farm hands by bringing them back for dinner or supper, or taking them from one part of the farm to another as a general shifts his troops back of the firing line. Marketing small products with the auto also pays, and the social advantages of the car are of genuine importance.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Forget Thee?
"Forget thee?"—If to dream by night and muse on thee by day.
If all the worship deep and wild, a poet's heart can pay.
If prayers in absence breathed for thee to heaven's protecting power,
If winged thoughts that flit to thee a thousand in an hour,
If busy fancy, blending thee with all my future lot—
If this thou call'st "forgetting," thou indeed shall be forgot!

"Forget thee?"—Bled the forest-birds forget their sweetest tune;
"Forget thee?"—Bled the sea forget to swell beneath the moon;
Bled thirsty flowers forget to drink the eve's refreshing dew;
Thyself forget thine "own dear land" and its "mountains wild and blue";
Forget each old, familiar face, each long-remembered spot—
When these things are forgot by thee, then thou shalt be forgot.

Keep, if thou wilt, thy maiden peace, still calm and fancy free.
For God forbid thy gladsome heart should grow less glad for me;
Yet, while that heart is still unwon, O bid not mine to rove,
But let it nurse its humble faith and uncompaining love;
If these, preserved for patient years, at last avail me not,
Forget me then—but ne'er believe that thou canst be forgot.
—John Moultrie.

Half Educated
"It wouldn't be a bad idea," said the boy's father, "if you did a little work during your summer vacation. You surely don't need three whole months to rest up after the little work you did at college. When I was your age I earned enough during the summer to pay my college expenses."

"Yes," replied the boy, "and look at the result. You can't play tennis at all, your golf is a joke, and you don't know as much about Ty Cobb's batting average as the lowest paid office boy in your establishment."

No Wonder
"I don't like New York," said little Jack, who had come to the city to visit his cousin.
"Why not?"
"I heard Aunt Susie say that summer schools were running full blast here."

Burglar Proof
"If you say this service is solid silver, I suppose I'll have to take your word for it," said the man who was selecting a wedding gift, "but it certainly doesn't look it."
"That's just the beauty of it," replied the salesman. "You can leave that silver service right out in plain sight on your sideboard, and burglars will never touch it."

Probably Not
"I believe a man should be master in his own house," said the newly married man. "There can be only one head in a family, and I mean to be it."
"That's a very good idea," answered his wife.

Information
Mabel was explaining the baseball game to Estelle.
"What makes the man with the bat in his hand keep waving it around like that?" inquired Estelle.
"Why, you silly goose," answered Mabel, "he does that so the pitcher can't hit it, of course."

MOTHER SEES BABE KILLED UNDER TRAIN

WILWAUKEE, Aug. 17.—An 18 months old baby was ground under the wheels of a Milwaukee passenger train today in full view of its parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Sommer. The tot had just learned to walk and early today accompanied Sommer a few rods from the house and kissed him good-bye. The mother standing in the doorway called for her baby to walk back just as the train whistled for the crossing.

"My dear sir—control yourself," pleaded Gonzale. "Or I may be unable to include the good will I spoke of. Would you care to see that story on the streets? You may at any moment. There is but one way out. Buy the newspaper. Buy it now. Here is the plan—you go with me to your bank. You procure fifteen thousand in cash. We go together to the Mail office. You pay me the money and I leave you in charge."

Old Meyrick leaped to his feet. "Very good," he cried. "Come on." "One thing more," continued the crafty Gonzale. "It may pay you to note—we are watched. Even now. All the way to the bank and thence to the office of the Mail—we will be watched. Should any accident, now unforeseen, happen to me, that issue of the Mail will go on sale in five minutes all over San Marco."

Spencer Meyrick stood glaring down at the little man in white. His enthusiasm of a moment ago for the journey vanished. However, the headlines of the Mail were staring up at him from the bench. He stooped, pocketed the paper, and growled:

"I understand. Come on!" There must be some escape. The trap seemed absurdly simple. Across the hotel lawn, down the hot avenue, in the less hot plaza, Meyrick sought a way. A naturally impulsive man, he had difficulty restraining himself. But he thought of his daughter, whose happiness was more than money in his eyes.

No way offered. At the counter of the tiny bank Meyrick stood writing his check. Gonzale at his elbow. Suddenly behind them the screen door slammed, and a wild-eyed man with flaming red hair rushed in. "What is it you want?" Gonzale screamed.

"Out of my way, Don Quixote," cried the red-topped one. "I'm a windmill and my arms breathe death. Are you Mr. Meyrick? Well, tear up that check!"
"Gladly," said Meyrick. "Only—" "Notice the catbirds down here?"
"On the wild one. Noisy little beasts, aren't they? Well, after this take off your hat to 'em. A catbird saved you a lot of money this morning."

"I'm afraid I don't follow—" said the dazed Spencer Meyrick.
"No? I'll explain. I have been working on this man's paper for the last week. So has a very good friend of mine. We knew he was crooked, but we needed the money and he promised us not to pull off any more blackmail while we stayed. Last night, after we left the office, he arranged this latest. Planned to incriminate me. You little devil—"

Manuel, frightened, leaped away. "We usually sleep until noon," went on O'Neill. "He counted on that. Enter the catbird. Sat on our window-sill at ten a. m. and screamed. Woke us up. We felt uneasy. Went to the office, broke down a bolted door, and found what was up."

"Dog!" foamed Manuel. "Outcast of the gutter!"
"Save your compliments," Mr. Meyrick, my partner is now at the Mail office destroying today's issue of the Mail. We've already ruined the first-page form, the cut of the policy, and the negative. And we're going north as fast as the Lord'll let us. You can do what you please. Arrest our little lemon-tinted employer, if you want to."

Spencer Meyrick stood, considering.
"However—I've done you a favor," O'Neill went on. "You can do me one. Let Manuel off—on one condition."

"Name it."
"That he hands me at once two hundred dollars—one hundred for myself, the other for my partner. It's legitimate salary money due us—we need it. A long walk to New York."
"I myself—" began Meyrick.
"Don't want your money," said O'Neill. "Want Gonzale's."
"Gonzale's you shall have," agreed Meyrick. "You—pay him!"
"Never!" cried the Spaniard.
"Then it's the police—" hinted O'Neill.
Gonzale took two yellow bills from a wallet. He tossed them at

"There, you cur—" "Careful," cried O'Neill. "Or I'll punch you yet—" He started forward, but Gonzale hastily withdrew. O'Neill and the millionaire followed to the street.
"Just as well," commented Meyrick. "I should not have cared to cause his arrest—it would have meant country-wide publicity." He laid a hand on the arm of the newspaper man. "I take it," he said, "that your fortunes are not at the highest ebb. You have done me a very great service. I propose to write two checks—one for you, one for your partner—and you may name the amounts."
But the red-haired one shook his head.
"No," he replied. "Nix on the anticlimax to virtue on a rampage. We can't be paid for it. It would sort of dim the glory. We've got the railroad fare at last—and we're going away from here. Yes—away from here. On the choo-choo—riding far—riding north."
"Well, my boy," answered Spencer Meyrick, "if I can ever do anything for you in New York, come and see me."
"You may have to make good on that," laughed O'Neill, and they parted.
O'Neill hastened to the Mail office. He waved yellow bills before the lanky Howe.
"In the nick of time," he cried. "Me the fair-haired hero. And here's the fare, Harry—the good old railroad fare."
"Heaven be praised," said Howe. "I've finished the job, Bob. Not a trace of this morning's issue left. The fare! North in parlor cars! My tobacco heart sings. Can't you hear the elevated—" "Music, Harry, music." "And the newsboys on Park Row—" "Caruso can't touch them. Where can we find a time-table, I wonder?"

Meanwhile, in a corner of the plaza, Manuel Gonzale spoke sad words in the ear of Martin Wall.
"It's the jinx," moaned Wall with conviction. "The star player in everything I do down here. I'm going to burn the sand hot-footing it away. But whither, Manuel, whither?"
"In Porto Rico," replied Gonzale. "I have not yet plied my trade. I go there."
"Palm Beach," sighed Wall, "has diamonds that can be observed to sparkle as far away as the New York society columns. But alas, I lack the wherewithal to support me in the style to which my victims are accustomed."
"Try Porto Rico," suggested Gonzale. "The air is mild—so are the police. I will take you."
"Thanks, Porto Rico it is. How the devil do we get there?"

TOMAHAWK LAKE TUBERCULOSIS CAMP OPENS

Room for Thirty Patients
in New Free Institution Built and Conducted by the State

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 17.—The tuberculosis camp at Tomahawk Lake is opened for patients this week. The application for eight patients have already been passed upon by the state board of control. There is immediate room for about thirty patients.

Unlike the sanatorium at Wales only "arrested" or incipient patients will be accepted at the Tomahawk Lake camp. The applications of persons who desire to be admitted to the institution must be approved by one of the physicians of the state board of control, who have been appointed to pass upon applications of tubercular patients. There are about 150 of these physicians in the state, at least one in each county.

Except for New York, which has an institution of this character in the Adirondack mountains, no other state has established a camp of this character. During the 1913 session of the legislature the bill for the establishment of this new institution was sponsored by Assemblyman Holmes of Dane county. It carried an appropriation of $20,000 for buildings and this legislature has appropriated $8,000 annually for maintenance.

Under the terms of the bill as it passed the legislature two years ago patients who have not sufficient funds to pay their way will be furnished money to pay all expenses. The camp is located on Tomahawk Lake.

F. A. Reich, who at one time was a patient at Wales, has been placed in charge of the new institution.

No new developments appeared today in the "poison letter" case of Mrs. William Kirchner, but Mrs. Kirchner is still detained at Central police station, it was admitted by authorities. Despite the secrecy which officials are maintaining in regard to the case, it is known that they believe the solution of the mystery surrounding the authorship of the threatening letters which Mrs. Kirchner received is rapidly approaching.

Thomas Kujawa, who was arrested with Mrs. Kirchner, is at liberty under bonds. He will be arraigned on a charge of lascivious conduct, District Attorney Otto Schlachach said this morning.

Most Valuable Metal.

In estimating the value of any metal we are apt to consider only the intrinsic money value of a given quantity, and from this view gold is generally regarded as the most valuable metal. But this is a mistaken notion. Value consists not merely in pound for pound money worth, but ought to include full consideration of serviceability and usefulness. Taking these into account, a scientific writer points out that iron is the most valuable metal because of the many different ways in which it is of great service to man. In this respect it is of the greatest value, and the world is fortunate in the great amount of it available.

ASSEMBLY RECORD ON BILLS VITAL TO PEOPLE SHOW KURTENACKER VOTED UNIFORMLY WITH INTERESTS

Local assemblyman voted with interests on water power, income tax, child labor, civil service, minimum wage and bank tax measures.

Herewith is presented a graphic record of the votes of the members of the assembly on the eleven bills before the Wisconsin legislature which most vitally affect the people of the state. While all will not agree in the selection made, an effort has been made to present the record on those bills which mark a permanent change in broad public policy, which works harm or injury to the mass of the people. No record is given on appropriation bills, because all those who voted for reductions through the session, turned around the last day of the session, and voted an unlimited amount to the governor, state treasurer and secretary of state to be used in making up a deficiency in any department of state government they see fit. The votes are so arranged that a vote in the public interest is indicated by an X and a vote for a private interest indicated by an O.

Where more than one roll call is taken the record is given on what is considered the decisive vote. When a member is recorded as absent on this vote, his record is taken, if present, on some other roll call as indicating which way he would have voted had he been present.

The issue presented in the water-power struggle was as to whether the state was to surrender every vestige of public right in the streams of the state, or whether some effort should be made to preserve these valuable privileges for the benefit of future generations.

The senate passed the Ackley water power bill, as amended by the Bray substitute, which in effect granted perpetual franchises, without restriction, or compensation to the people. The assembly inserted the Nordman amendment, which provided that the state or a municipality, at the end of a thirty year period, should have the privilege of purchasing the power site, paying only for actual cost of improvement, plus the value of the power site, fixed at the time the franchise was granted. This preserved to the people the increase in value of a property, whose value was created by a franchise granted by the legislature. The vote given here is on a motion to reconsider the action of the assembly, in an attempt to eliminate this feature. Those voting for reconsideration voted with the power interests and are marked O.

The one man tax commission reorganization bill contemplated the destruction of the machinery by which the income tax has been made a success in this state, and its passage was an indirect attempt to make the income tax ineffective through inefficient administration. It also struck a blow at a commission which has, by its administration of the tax laws, compelled the larger business interests of the state to pay their proportionate share of the tax burden. The support of the bill by practically every large corporation in the state gave sufficient evidence that the tax commission has been a benefit to the great mass of the people.

The vote here given was taken on a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill had been previously killed.

Those voting to reconsider, voted to serve the interests, striving to nullify both the income tax and a proper equalization of the tax burden, and are marked with an O.

The central board of education, as passed in the assembly, while pretending to be in the interest of rural schools, contained nothing beyond a promise for the rural schools. Its chief purpose was to so reorganize the governing boards of the higher institutions of learning, especially the state university, so that a halter could be put on the teachings in that institution, which did not conform to the political and economic beliefs of the reactionaries, who would have control of the new board. Those who voted for the bill voted to stifle freedom of thought and teaching in the people's university and are marked with an O.

The Edwards child labor bill, permitting children under eighteen years to work in quarries presented the fundamental issue involved in the prevention of child labor. Known to be the third most hazardous occupation in which minors are engaged in the state of Wisconsin, the bill struck at the heart of the child labor law, placed the lives of young boys in jeopardy because as one member said: "It would be cheaper to kill boys than grown up men." Those voting for the bill on final passage in the assembly voted to strike down the child labor legislation which has made this state a leader in protection to child workers. They are marked O.

The Hambrecht bill, providing that all those taking civil service examinations who received a passing mark, should be eligible for appointment, destroyed the merit principle of the service law, and opened the way for the return to the spoils system in appointments to positions in the public service. No state in the union, having a civil service law, contains any such farcical provision. Its passage would have made the continuation of civil service in

The Record

An X opposite the name of your Assemblyman means a vote in the public interest as indicated at the top of each column. An O indicates a vote on the other side of the question. A indicates absent.

this state a hollow mockery. Those voting for the bill, which passed the assembly, are marked O.

The vote on the minimum wage is taken on the Crosby amendment to Bill number 666A, fixing six dollars a week as the minimum wage for women over eighteen years of age, engaged in industrial and mercantile establishments in the state of Wisconsin. Exceptions were made in the bill which did not make it apply to those physically deficient, or to apprentices.

Investigators for the industrial commission had found that the cost of living was in excess of nine dollars a week in Milwaukee, and slightly less in the rest of the state. The

ST. ELIAS PLANS TO BUILD BASEMENT

The St. Elias' Syrian Orthodox church on Mill street, will construct a basement to the church in the near future, if the present plans of the congregation materialize. At a business meeting held unday in the church a committee of two, Ellis Sady and S. Markas, was appointed to confer with contractors in regard to the estimated cost of an addition. The church has a three-foot rock foundation with but a partial basement, and it is planned to raise the building five feet. The addition is planned to provide a place for business meetings, teaching and social events. The committee will make their report on the estimated cost, in two weeks.

HERE'S A FISH STORY THAT'S NOT 'FISHY'

When is a fish story not a fish story? George Osl-Jendler, 122 Avon street, circulating a story this morning that he caught a twenty-six pound catfish on a setline in Black river last night, was able to back his story with the goods. The fish weighed exactly twenty-six pounds, live weight.

state law requires that every woman wage earner shall receive a living wage. With this information from the industrial commission, a minimum wage of but eight dollars in cities of the first class, seven dollars in cities of the second and third class, and six dollars in towns and villages, and cities of the fourth class, was asking but a sorry compliance with what the state law guaranteed. Those voting for the amendment were voting to establish some sort of a minimum wage, which would enable the future mothers of the state to maintain themselves in "decent comfort and well being." Those voting against are marked O.

The bill to give the insurance commissioner authority to reduce fire insurance rates held to be unreasonable, involved the right of the state to force the stock fire insurance companies to reduce their rates to a basis where Wisconsin would pay what other states are paying. During the last five years $228 in insurance premiums have been collected for every $100 paid back in losses to Wisconsin policy holders. During this time but $178 was paid by the rest of the United States for every $100 in losses. On this basis, the people of this state are paying annually $2,000,000, which is used either as velvet for the insurance companies, or else to lighten the rates of the people of other states. Wherever the right of the state to regulate rates has been asserted in other states, reductions have been secured. The bill was fought by one of the most active lobbies before the legislature. It went through the senate unanimously, and was defeated in the assembly by a vote of 41 to 35. Those voting against the bill are marked O.

The bill to permit banks to pay taxes on a basis of 10 per cent of their net income, instead of paying the general property tax rate upon the value of their capital stock, meant a reduction in taxes of over $350,000 for the banks of the state, which the remaining taxpayers would have been forced to assume, had the bill passed. At a time, when the ordinary tax payer is pressed to find money enough to meet his tax bill, it would seem that an effort to relieve banks, the business best able to pay, from a tax in so large an amount is inexcusable, if a member of the legislature is to "represent the people." Those voting for the bill are marked O.

The Grell bill, permitting the manufacture of cheese from skim milk, struck a blow at the reputation which Wisconsin has established as the foremost cheese producing state in the union, both on account of the high quality, as well as the quantity of cheese produced. The people of the state in a referendum taken in over 800 towns at the spring election disapproved of the bill by a vote of over 15 to 1. Those voting for the bill are marked O.

The jitney bus regulation bill, in its original form, was put through the senate, and engrossed in the assembly, solely at the behest of the street railways, whose only interest was the removal of a public service, which threatened to interfere with their profits. There was plenty of opportunity to pass a bill, which would secure adequate protection to the public without making it impossible for the jitney bus to continue. These amendments were voted down by the members, who voted for the passage of the bill. It was only after the action of the legislature had met with universal condemnation throughout the state that the bill was recalled and amended in a way which made it fair to jitney bus operators. Those voting for the original bill on its first passage are marked O.

STATE OWNED MINES
COMMISSION'S PLAN

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 17.—
That the Manley report of the federal

the impression given by Chairman

Walsh declared that the money on which the Rockefeller foundation was created consisted of wages with-and use them for the betterment of living conditions of the workers.

NAVAL HONORS ACCORDED BLUEJACKETS
WHO GAVE LIVES FOR PEACE IN HAYTI

Sailors firing volley over bluejackets' coffins.

Boston accorded naval honors to William Gompers of Brooklyn, N. Y., a nephew of Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor, and Carson Whitehurst of Norfolk, Va., both members of the crew of the U. S. S. Washington, who were killed on July 29 when some Haitian rebels resisted the landing of the American sailors at Port-au-Prince. After sailors had fired a volley over the flag-draped coffins on the pier at Charleston navy yard, Boston, the hearses were escorted through the city by a naval delegation and the bodies put on the train to be taken to relatives.

TO WHAT EXTENT HAS PHILIPP PUT OVER HIS PROGRAM?

Record of Legislature Shows
Financial Outcome Still

Remains in Doubt

SOME CONSOLIDATIONS PUT OVER

But Bulk of Big Plans Failed to Pass During Session of Many Months

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 17. — The record of Governor Philipp's efforts to carry out his campaign pledges shows, in resume, that much of his success or failure is still a matter of conjecture.

It is impossible to say to just what extent Governor Philipp's recommendations with regard to appropriation have been carried out. The amount appropriated for the coming biennium is less by several millions than the amount appropriated two years ago, but the amount actually expended during the last two years was slightly less than the total amount which will be available for the coming biennium. There is to be considered, in addition, the emergency appropriation fund, disposition of which it will take two years to determine. Should this be freely drawn upon state expenses might show a decided increase.

The governor's recommendations for the consolidation of commissions were carried out only in so far as a majority of all political parties and factions were in agreement. Three consolidations were made; the state conservation commission supplants the fish commission, forestry board, state park board, conservation commission and the game wardens department. The commissioner of agriculture combines the functions of the board of immigration, inspector of dairies, the livestock sanitary board, the state board of agriculture and the board of veterinary examiners. The last three, however, are retained in an advisory capacity. The bill to place the fire marshal under the commissioner of insurance eliminates one department but continues the same appropriation.

New Departments

A survey of the session shows that the following departments were created: The department of architecture and engineering at a cost of $18,000 annually, which is to supervise the engineering work of the various commissions; the state printing board, with one appointive officer in addition to the governor and the superintendent of public property, supplants the old board. The state board of education adds the last creation. It has general financial management of all the financial matters of the state educational institutions. A committee on swamp lands and claims composed of the governor and two others to be appointed by him at a cost of $10,000, will prosecute claims against the federal government.

Educational Changes

The recommendations of the governor in respect to the educational system which met with legislative approval were: A raise in the tuition rate for non-resident students at the university from $124 to $148 annually; a repeal of building appropriations at the university made by the 1913 legislature of $550,000; and a refusal to provide additional normal schools. While the appropriations for the university have been, on the face, decreased $458,000 below those recommended by the finance committee, the passage of the emergency fund leaves it doubtful what decrease, if any, will be made. For rural schools the recommendation that state aid be extended to teachers for continuous service was carried out. More supervision is also provided in the passage of the bill creating a committee on common schools in each county with provision for a supervisory assistance for county superintendents of schools.

An appropriation of $100,000 annually was made to pay off the state indebtedness to the various school trust funds.

The legislature, for the first time since 1898, made a specific levy of a state tax beyond which the constitutional officers cannot go, in accordance with the recommendations of the governor. This was in the nominal sum of $1,000, as the statutory appropriation amounts to a considerable sum in excess of what it is expected will be necessary.

ALLIES' LEADERS AT THE DARDANELLES

General Ian Hamilton (left) visiting General Gouraud to announce a success near Krithia.

The fortune of war, its glory and its grief, are vividly suggested by this pictured meeting of two famous French and British commanders, General Gouraud and General Sir Ian Hamilton, at Seddul-Bahr, near which place most of the Dardanelles fighting has occurred. General Hamilton visited the French commander-in-chief to inform him of an important gain that afternoon near Krithia. Two days later General Gouraud was so badly wounded that it was necessary to amputate his right arm.

cordance with the recommendations of the governor. This was in the nominal sum of $1,000, as the statutory appropriation amounts to a considerable sum in excess of what it is expected will be necessary.

What Governor Lost

Taking up the recommendations of the governor which failed, the most important was in reference with the change advocated in the water power law. Instead of granting franchises without restriction, the legislature provided that the state at the end of the thirty year period could purchase any power site at a valuation fixed at the granting of the franchise.

The fight made by the governor to reorganize the tax commission was lost in both houses of the legislature. The present membership will be continued without any possibility of a change in this administration. Governor Philipp's recommendation to transfer the work of assessing the income tax to local assessors, thereby abolishing income tax assessors, also met with disapproval in both houses.

No Welfare Board

The bill providing for the consolidation of the dairy and food commission, the board of health, and several smaller departments into what was to be known as the public welfare board was sent to defeat, much to the governor's disappointment.

The central board of education plan, which contemplated the abolition of the boards of regents of the university and normal schools, met with failure in the senate after being passed in the assembly.

The specific recommendations in regard to the legislative reference library went to the boards without even the dignity of a roll-call.

Neither of the recommendations of the governor in regard to the industrial commission were put through. These called for the appeals from awards being brought where injuries occur and that cases before the commission be initiated by the county judge.

The recommendation that continuing appropriations be abolished was not passed in either house.

Giving Her Her Due.

Several villagers were discussing a departed sister, who had been given to good deeds but was rather too fond of dispensing sharp-spoken advice. "She was an excellent woman," said the deceased lady's pastor. "She was constantly in the homes of the poor and afflicted. In fact, she was the salt of the earth." "She was more than that," remarked a villager. "She was the vinegar, the pepper, and the mustard as well. She was a perfect cruet-stand of virtues."

PARTY OF TWENTY STORMS

PRISON TO GET VICTIM

The girl an Atlanta jury found Frank guilty of murdering.

A mob of twenty men dragged him from the hospital on Milledgeville prison farm just before midnight. Of all the armed guards on the farm, not one raised a hand to protect him.

By automobile the mob rushed their prisoner to the spot where they had chosen to kill him.

Of his last hours, none but those who hanged him know anything.

That he was dead was not even known until his body was found dangling from a tree a short distance off the highway into Marietta.

Wrenched by the rope which strangled him, the gash recently cut in his throat by William Green, the fellow convict who tried to murder him, had gaped open horribly. From the wound blood had gushed in torrents, staining his prison suit crimson.

The corpse was not touched by shot. Evidently the fusillades fired by his lynchers as they fled from the prison farm were merely to scare off pursuit.

The lynching scene was more than 100 miles from the state prison farm.

The Marietta chief of police said today that he had no clue to the lynchers. He was doing his best, he declared, to find and arrest them.

The police have been unable to learn the identity of the lynching party from the superintendent of the prison farm.

Frank evidently had been dead several hours when his body was found by Marietta officials who were searching for him.

Little doubt was entertained here that the mob was from this place. Significance was seen by the authorities in the fact that several well loaded automobiles left town last night with about enough of a time allowance to enable them to reach the prison farm a little before midnight by fast driving.

The utterance of one of the kidnapers that the prisoner's body would be found on the grave of his alleged victim, little Mary Phagan, proved untrue.

J. J. Jackson, a Putnam county farmer, was the source of a report that Frank had been shot. Jackson said he heard the kidnaping party pass his home about midnight. A few minutes later, he said, he heard about 100 pistol shots. Searching parties this morning found many empty cartridges.

Jackson said the automobile party was proceeding eastward. He is the last person who is positively known to have seen the kidnapers.

Governor Harris this morning ordered every agency of the enlisted in an effort to trace the kidnaping party.

He has ordered Warden Smith to submit a full report.

The first reports were the rumor that the mob was made up of friends of Frank, who only yesterday was released from the hospital, having fully recovered from the knife wound inflicted by a fellow prisoner several weeks ago.

Five of the men in the kidnaping party wore masks, according to reports received in Atlanta early today. These five did most of the work. They bound Warden Smith, while other members of the mob kept their revolvers trained on the warden, tied him, and left two men to watch while the others proceeded to the dormitory where Frank slept.

Several automobiles, it is said, pulled up in front of the prison dormitory. Two men threw Frank into the rear seat. Three others returned to the dormitory where Frank slept.

Superintendent Surprised

The same five surprised Superintendent Burke and two guards, who are said to have been asleep on the front porch of the dormitory. There was a short scuffle in which the guards' revolvers were whisked away. They were securely tied.

When they reappeared they were dragging Frank by the heels, according to the guards. The prisoner's hair was disheveled, his night clothes were partly torn off and he made vain attempts to say something to Burke as the mob pulled him off the steps.

"We'll take you along if you want to go," said one of the masked men to Burke. "We'll cut you loose after we get through with Frank."

Burke shook his head. The pair ran back to the automobiles which already were under way and disappeared in the darkness.

Trusty Gives Alarm

A negro trusty who had hidden in the dormitory when the mob dragged Frank out, freed Burke and then hastened to the home of J. W. Satterfield, one of the prison officials. Satterfield attempted to telephone the warden but found the wires cut. He ran to the warden's home and cut the ropes that bound him. Warden Smith drove to a nearby farmhouse, from which he sent out telephone calls to the police of all surrounding towns.

The mob, it is estimated, had a forty-five minute start on their pursuers. Telephone calls to all surrounding cities failed to reveal any trace of the kidnapers and the belief is that after lynching Frank the men dispersed to their homes. Atlanta was agog with excitement over the kidnaping of Frank. There were no disorders with which the police were not able to cope. The news of Frank's kidnaping reached here too late to cause assembling of crowds of any size. This morning small groups of people congregated on street corners and excitedly discussed the case. A few hot-heads made curbstone speeches but popular demonstrations were at a minimum.

Corpses Still Lying

To add to the sight's horror, Sheriff Hicks of Cobb county, in whose jurisdiction the lynching occurred, could not be found and in his absence the coroner would take no steps towards having the corpse taken down.

At 10:30 it was still dangling at the end of the rope, above the gaze of thousands of eyes.

The news spread fast and soon automobile parties began to arrive from Atlanta, Roswell, Marietta and other towns in the vicinity.

The road soon became impassable and by 11 a. m. it was estimated that 5,000 persons were gathered around the tree from which Frank's body hung.

The lynchers' treatment of their victim—a man but just recovering from a wound which all but cost him his life—the prison officials' own description of his dumb agony as the self-constituted executioners dragged him by his feet down the stone steps from his hospital room to the death car awaiting him outside, the picture of the ripping open of the terrible gash in his throat by the noose which strangled him and finally the pitiful collapse of his wife when told of her husband's fate, caused a feeling of pity and indignation astonishing in a community which itself was so recently demanding the life of the same man hanged today.

R. E. Davidson, E. L. Rainey and T. E. Patterson, composing the Georgia prison board, which refused to recommend clemency for Frank when he was under sentence at Atlanta, were at the Milledgeville farm when the mob visited it.

The trio had arrived to supervise improvements and had just retired to their rooms in Superintendent Burke's house when the alarm was given that a mob had arrived.

All started for the scene of the disturbance, but did not arrive until the kidnapers were leaving with Frank.

Davidson said today a statement will be given out later by the board. The affair was so quietly conducted, he asserted, that nobody fully realized what was happening until all was over.

HUNT IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE STATE HOTEL MEN

Presides at Big Banquet Which Ends Business Session at Hotel La Crosse Last Night

BIG TIME AT THE FEAST

Delegates and Wives Sing, Dance and Listen to Oratory by Able Speakers

C. A. Hunt, proprietor of the Hotel La Crosse, was yesterday afternoon elected to the head of the Wisconsin State Hotel association for the ensuing year, and last night presided at the banquet at which seventy-five men and women, proprietors and their wives, with half a score of local business men, headed by C. S. Van Auker, sang, danced and feasted. The banquet closed yesterday's business session of the nineteenth annual state convention of the association. The repast was enjoyed in the spacious banquet room at the Hotel La Crosse.

From the moment that the orchestra struck up America, leading the banqueters in the patriotic song, until the lips of Ray Smith, past president of the association and toastmaster of the evening, had closed upon the last "good night," the throng enjoyed itself to the limit.

Tour the City

The bonifaces awoke early this morning to a day full of activity. Breakfast was followed by a sight seeing tour of La Crosse in a dozen automobiles. Pilots well acquainted with the city's beauty spots took the hotel men here, there and everywhere.

The trip was concluded at the country club where luncheon was served.

The hotel men embarked upon a river excursion to Winona at 2 o'clock. Supper was to be served at the Winona hotel in the up-river city at 5:30 and an immediate return made.

Bidding La Crosse good bye, the hotel men are scheduled to leave on a midnight train for Dayton. The majority of them will attend the convention of Northwestern hotel men there tomorrow.

Cheer New President

After the feast last night Ed. J. Carroll, proprietor of the Commercial house at Watertown, dubbed the "dancing vice-president" because of his willingness to demonstrate his terpsichorean ability between the courses, started the oratory, with the remark that the "material for the presidency this year seemed inexhaustible. We didn't even have to hunt for him." The remark brought forth three cheers for the president-elect, and the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow" for the first of thirty or forty times during the evening.

Charles E. Gehring, managing editor of the Hotel Review, a magazine published in New York City, spoke briefly for greater co-operation among hotel keepers, declaring that with but small effort the state organization could be strengthened immeasurably. Concerning legislation, the speaker declared "the less legislation we have the better we are."

Called upon to deliver a regular speech, C. A. Hunt pleaded for clemency, claiming that as an extemporaneous speaker he was a howling success, but he left 'em laughing with a humorous story.

James T. Drought, Milwaukee, attorney for the state hotel association, urged every hotel proprietor to become a member of the state organization to fight for laws against fraud. The speaker paid a high compliment to W. H. Mase, state hotel inspector, for his common sense interpretation of the hotel law.

Urges Helping Employes

John Sweeney, Janesville, a member of the state association for nineteen years, opened his remarks with the statement that the heads of several of the largest hotels in the state today, who were present at the banquet, were bellboys when he first joined the association. He spoke strongly in favor of helping the hotel employes along.

In behalf of the Board of Trade, the Manufacturers and Jobbers association and the city of La Crosse, C. S. Van Auker welcomed the visitors to the city.

Next City Not Chosen

The 1916 convention city will not be decided upon until the meeting of the executive committee next spring. Three cities are in line for the honor, Elkhardt Lake, Grand Rapids, and Janesville.

The officers for the coming year who were elected yesterday afternoon at the business session are C. A. Hunt, Hotel La Crosse, president; E. J. Carroll, Commercial House, Watertown, vice president; Herman O. Klezsch, Republican House, Milwaukee, secretary and treasurer.

Roger Bourke, Calvin W. Baker of the Hotel Stoddard, W. H. Mase, hotel inspector, H. H. Long, W. W. Byers, Milwaukee, C. W. H. Harry Eastman, Chicago, C. C. Randolph Milwaukee, were all called upon for short speeches.

This is a Hotel

This is the definition of a hotel as agreed yesterday afternoon by the Wisconsin State Hotelmen's convention in session here:

"Any building or place offered to the public for sleeping or eating purposes and containing five or more rooms shall be known as a hotel."

The definition of the word, a subject of argument among hotel men for a long time, will be recommended by the Badger state inkeepers to the national body of hotel men in Chicago.

READY SALE FOR LANSING TICKETS

Record Crowd Is Expected to Board Steamer for U.

C. T.-Board of Trade

Outing Saturday

Tickets for the U. C. T.-Board of Trade excursion to Lansing next Saturday are meeting an excellent advance sale, according to the committee in charge of their disposal, and a record crowd is expected when the boat leaves the levee next Saturday afternoon.

Members of the board of trade and the travelers are planning to make the outing a big family picnic as well as an important agency for the furtherance of amicable relations with the Iowa city. Most of them will take their wives and youngsters along on the trip.

The boat will leave the levee at 1:30 sharp, says C. S. Van Auker, secretary of the board of trade. A program of entertainment which includes band music and speeches by Hon. John J. Esch and Mayor A. A. Bentley will occupy the time between the arrival of the visitors and their departure from Lansing. The boat will dock at La Crosse about 10:30.

HUNDREDS ATTEND TENT GATHERINGS

Peter MacFarlane Draws

Big Crowds to Evangelistic Meetings at Fifth and State Streets

The special union services being held in the large tent at Fifth and State streets are steadily growing in popularity, if the increased attendance is any criterion of its success. Since the first meeting held Sunday by Peter MacFarlane, evangelist from St. Paul, the audience at each successive meeting has shown a marked gain, until last night one of the largest crowds that ever attended an evangelistic meeting in this city heard Mr. MacFarlane speak on "Faith in God." The sermon, delivered in the powerful, pleasing, frank style of the St. Paul evangelist, was not given in vain, for several of the audience "hit the sawdust trail."

The musical program under the direction of D. C. Dewey is an important factor in the daily meetings. There will be a special song service at the meeting tonight when the north side quartette will be heard. Mr. MacFarlane's sermon for the tent meeting tonight will be a discussion of the subject, "Doing Your Duty."

THREE HOUSES ARE HIT BY LIGHTNING

Three residences in the same block were struck by lightning during the electrical storm early Monday morning. The bolt passed through the home of Anton Konok, 1459 Redfield street, Mrs. Pelagia Banasik, 1461 Redfield, and Mrs. Victoria Banasik, 1465 Redfield street, all adjacent to each other. In the Konok home plaster on the kitchen was said to have been damaged, while a few shingles were torn loose at the home of Mrs. Pelagia Banasik. No damage was suffered by fire.

SHOOTING CHAMPIONSHIP ON

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Keen rivalry and remarkable shooting was shown here today in the singles target match for the national championship. Shooters banged away and the birds fell so fast scores almost lost count.

W. S. Hoon, newspaperman, Jewell, Iowa, captured amateur honors yesterday breaking 196 out of 200 targets.

"Just as they were starting away, the leader said: 'Now boys for the swamp.'"

"Then, in less time than it takes to tell it, they were off and I could see their lights flashing as they went over the hill toward Meriwether, on the road that leads to Atlanta."

Diary Wins Girl Freedom From Detention School

The innocent contents of the little leather-bound diary in which she had recorded the few bright spots in her life, and an old county record which showed her age to be eighteen years, led Judge John Brindley today to dismiss the action against pretty Josephine Dove. The girl was released and advised by the court to stay close by her sister, Mrs. Mary Jenkins, who befriended her when her mother, Mrs. Mary Dove, made application in county court to have her place in a detention home in Milwaukee.

PRISON HEAD TELLS GRAPHIC STORY OF MOB

where they knew he was quartered. "I was marched up to the penitentiary building by a guard which was doubled as we proceeded.

"When we reached the building, a demand was made that the gate be opened, and when the trusty in charge hesitated, awaiting official orders, the kidnapers began cutting the wires and told the trusty that he would be killed as soon as they got in.

Drag Frank By Hair

"At this the gate was unlocked and Night Guard Hester came forward, but was immediately covered with guns and ordered to throw up his hands.

"Half way up the stairs I was halted while half a dozen men rushed by me and made a dash for Frank's room.

"One of the prisoners who witnessed what followed said four men seized Frank by his arms and legs, while a fifth grabbed him by the hair and he was dragged out and bumped down the stairs.

"While I looked on Frank never uttered a word, but he evidently suffered intensely and groaned from the pain the lynchers inflicted on him by the roughness with which they handled him in his wounded condition.

"The members of the mob told me they did not mean to harm anyone but Frank.

"The whole thing took hardly five minutes. Before we realized the enormity of the occurrence it was a written chapter.

"While it was going on I was handcuffed and under guard.

Leave Superintendent Handcuffed

"When the crowd had dragged Frank outside and was starting off with him, I asked the man who snapped the handcuffs on me to unlock them but he laughed and said if I would accompany them he would take off the irons.

"I replied that I was 'damned' if I would go anywhere with them.

"The whole procedure was timed as a well ordered and methodical proposition, and only a few words were spoken.

"Only two of the men were masked, but I did not recognize any of them.

"Just as they were starting away, the leader said: 'Now boys for the swamp.'"

"Then, in less time than it takes to tell it, they were off and I could see their lights flashing as they went over the hill toward Meriwether, on the road that leads to Atlanta."

U. S. AGREES TO ARBITRAL BOARD IN FRYE CASE

Government Reply to Germany in Case of Sunken Liner Made Public Today

INDEMNITY WILL BE ACCEPTED

Acceptance, However, Shall Be Without Prejudice to American Contention Sinking Was Illegal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The American reply to the German government in the case of the schooner William P. Frye, American merchant liner, sunk by German sea raiders, was made public today by the department.

The United States in its reply, agrees to the proposal of the German government that "each of two governments designate an expert to fix the amount of indemnity for the vessel."

Acceptance of such payments however, shall be without prejudice to the American contention that the sinking was without justification. The American government also agrees to the proposal to submit the case to a board of arbitration under The Hague agreement.

"If this proposal proves acceptable to the German government," says the note, "it will be necessary also to determine whether, pending the arbitral award, the imperial German government shall govern its naval operations in accordance with its own interpretation, or in accordance with the interpretation maintained by the United States as to the obligation imposed by their treaty stipulation, and the government of the United States will be glad to have an expression of the views of the imperial German government on this point."

U. S. CAVALRYMAN SLAIN IN BATTLE WITH MEXICANS

Two Other Soldiers Wounded in Repulse of Seventy Invaders Near Santa Maria

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 17.—A United States cavalryman was killed and two were wounded when seventy Mexicans crossed the river near Santa Maria last night. The Mexicans were repulsed but their losses are unknown. Several hundred Mexicans were reported to be congregating on the Mexican side of the river this morning. Another clash is expected hourly.

The cavalryman killed in last night's battle was Corporal Wilman, Lieutenant Roy O. Henry and Trooper Jackson were wounded. All were members of Troop C, Twelfth cavalry.

NO PROBE ORDERED OF WORLD CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The state department was silent today concerning its reported investigation of charges against the German government by the New York World. No investigation has been ordered, it was stated, but full publication of the charges might bring executive action.

The department also denied official notification of the reported intention of President Yuan Shi Kai of China to declare himself emperor. Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, legal adviser to the Chinese government, has no connection with this government, it was stated.

TUG BELIEVED LOST IN LAKE ERIE GALE

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 17.—Owners of the gasoline tug Willis W., which left Cleveland at 8:30 last night with a crew of three men, today abandoned hope that the craft had escaped destruction in the gale that swept Lake Erie last night. Those on board were: Lawrence Pfister, Clayton Marless and Percy Cook, all of Erie.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN FAMOUS COMEDY

"Tillie's Punctured Romance," the picture that turned the whole country "Chaplin crazy," is being brought back by Manager McWilliams of the Casino. This was the picture that raised Chaplin from obscurity to the very pinnacle of screen fame. Before the advent of this picture Chaplin was unknown. In six months' time he has become internationally famous. Every circus in the country has its Chaplin clowns. Every vaudeville circuit has its Chaplin impersonators. The screen has dozens and dozens of them, while there is hardly a "regular kid" in the whole United States who has not at some time or other tried to imitate Chaplin, and all because of his wonderful work in "Tillie's Punctured Romance." Marie Dressler was never seen to better advantage than in this picture, but the amusement world knew Miss Dressler whereas Chaplin was new to them and the whole country went wild over him. This feature was shown here some six months ago and its success was so pronounced that Mr. McWilliams has been trying ever since to secure it for a return engagement, and this is the first open time he could secure. "Tillie's Punctured Romance" will be at the Casino Wednesday and Thursday.

"I most heartily recommend the appointment of a committee on sociology in every diocese in the United States to investigate conditions among the poorer classes," advised Monsignor Ambrose Roach of Boston, in addressing the delegates to the convention of the societies today.

Camel

Get that flavor!

Camels are unlike any other cigarette; they are blended choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos. And you'll prefer their new flavor to either tobacco smoked straight! The mild-mellowness, backed by most satisfying "body," is highly desirable.

Camels neither bite the tongue nor parch the throat and they leave no unpleasant cigarette after-taste.

Your appreciation of Camel Cigarettes begins as quick as you light one. Test your taste on this new blended brand and realize how delightful a cigarette can be. We ask you to compare quality, flavor, mellowness and fragrance with any cigarette at any price! The cost of tobaccos blended in Camels prohibits the use of premiums.

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages, 20 for 10c; or 10 packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-covered carton for $1.00. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

SENATORS START PLANS TO GET TOGAS AGAIN

Seats of Sixteen Members Are to Be Filled Before Next Session of the Legislature

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 17. — The seats of sixteen members of the state senate are to be filled by election before the next legislature sits. Many will probably be candidates to succeed themselves. Eight have strong progressive tendencies. The list of outgoing senators follows:

E. F. Ackley, Chippewa Falls; W. J. Biehler, Beloit; Otto Bosshard, La Crosse; Timothy Burke, Greer; H. M. Culbertson, Medina; L. E. Cunningham, Beloit; Robert Glenn, Wyalusing; Henry Huber, Stoughton; L. G. Kellogg, Ripon; A. E. Martin, Milwaukee; Robert W. Monk, Neillsville; W. L. Richards, Milwaukee; George E. Skogmo, River Falls; W. T. Stevens, Rhinelander; A. Pearce, Tompkins; George H. Weissleder, Milwaukee.

It is rumored that Senator Glenn may not be a candidate for re-election owing to impaired health. It is said that Henry E. Roethe, "legomobile" candidate for governor a year ago, of Fennimore, has his eye on the post. Senator Bosshard may not be a candidate. He is being strongly urged to leave the progressive candidate for governor on the republican side. Senator Biehler has been repeatedly mentioned as a possible democratic candidate for governor, but during the last days of the session emphatically declared he had no designs for that office. Senators Richards and Weissleder are promised opposition in the primaries should they be candidates again, according to reports here.

Should Attorney General Owen be a candidate for the supreme court, it is possible that Senator Skogmo will become a candidate for attorney general. It is conceded that Senator Burke, who has served in the legislature the past twenty years, will be a candidate for re-election.

No matter how homely a man is, he always imagines he has a pleasing personality.

"CRIBBING" SCANDAL AT NAVAL COLLEGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The navy department could not tell yesterday how long it will take to change the Annapolis academy examination system as recommended by the "cribbing" investigators.

Secretary Daniels expressed regret at the necessity for dismissing Midshipman R. M. Nelson, Peekskill, N. Y., and C. M. Reagle, Wellsville, Ohio, but said the naval authorities deemed the punishment unavoidable. In addition four midshipmen were demoted into the class below their own, one was sent to the foot of his own class, one received 75 and two 50 demerits each; one suffered the withholding of his ensign's commission for three months, and three were reprimanded.

CARRIGAN'S SOX PICK OF THE FIELD

New York Bettors Offer Odds of 6 to 5 on Red Hose to Cop the Gonfalon

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Betting men practically without exception today picked the Red Sox to win the American league pennant. However, they have a wholesome respect for Hughey Jennings' Tiger crew, as evidenced by the odds of 6 to 5 on Boston to win against the field. The White Sox are finding few supporters in New York although 4 to 1 is quoted that the Chicago clan finishes in the first division. The majority of sports dope the race to finish in the order named—Boston winning, Detroit and the White Sox trailing in third place.

Following are some of the odds offered around the baseball Rialto and in the sporting hang-outs today: 6 to 5 on the Red Sox to win. 5 to 3 that the Tigers finish above the White Sox.

4 to 1 that the White Sox finish in the first division. Even money that the White Sox don't finish with a 600 percentage. Even money that the Nationals finish in the third division.

3 to 1 that neither Cleveland, Philadelphia nor St. Louis finishes better than sixth.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's Homers

Bressler, Athletics, off Cladwell, Yanks.
Groh, Reds, off Kautlechner, Pirates.
Copper, Brookfeds, off Hearne, Pittfeds.
Mann, Whales, off Suggs, Terrapins.
Yesterday was a great day for pitchers—to wit:
McConnell, Whales, off Suggs, Terrapins.
Bressler, Athletics, held Yanks to one hit.
Boland, Tigers, held Indians to one hit.
Main, Kawfeds, held Buffeds hitless.
Galia, Nationals, held Red Sox to two hits.

A Certainty.

Two men traveling together were on a New York street car—surface, elevated or subway, no matter. Every seat was full, those at the rear of the car being occupied by well dressed men. Presently the car stopped and a woman came aboard. Very nice looking woman, but not a fashion plate. "I'll bet you what you like," said one of the two, "that not a man in the car offers her his place." "Come on," responded the other. "Don't you know enough about the etiquette and ethics of gambling to know that you have no right to bet on a certainty?"

RUSSELL MINISTER TO SANTO DOMINGO

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Secretary of State Lansing today announced that W. W. Russell, formerly minister to Santo Domingo, will be returned to the post to succeed James M. Sullivan.

Not a Hit was Scored off Mr. Boland and till two were out in the ninth, when Mr. Ben Paschel, a red, raw recruit, busted a single. Boland should lay for him with a black-jack. The Tigers, however, won two games, while the Red Sox were taking one, shortening the gap between them slightly.

Even the White Sox showed a belated burst of ball playing—taking two games from the Browns.

John McGraw fooled a lot of persons who thought his Giants were dead, by taking the last game of the series from the Superbas.

The Chicago Feds slipped into first place while the Newarks were resting.

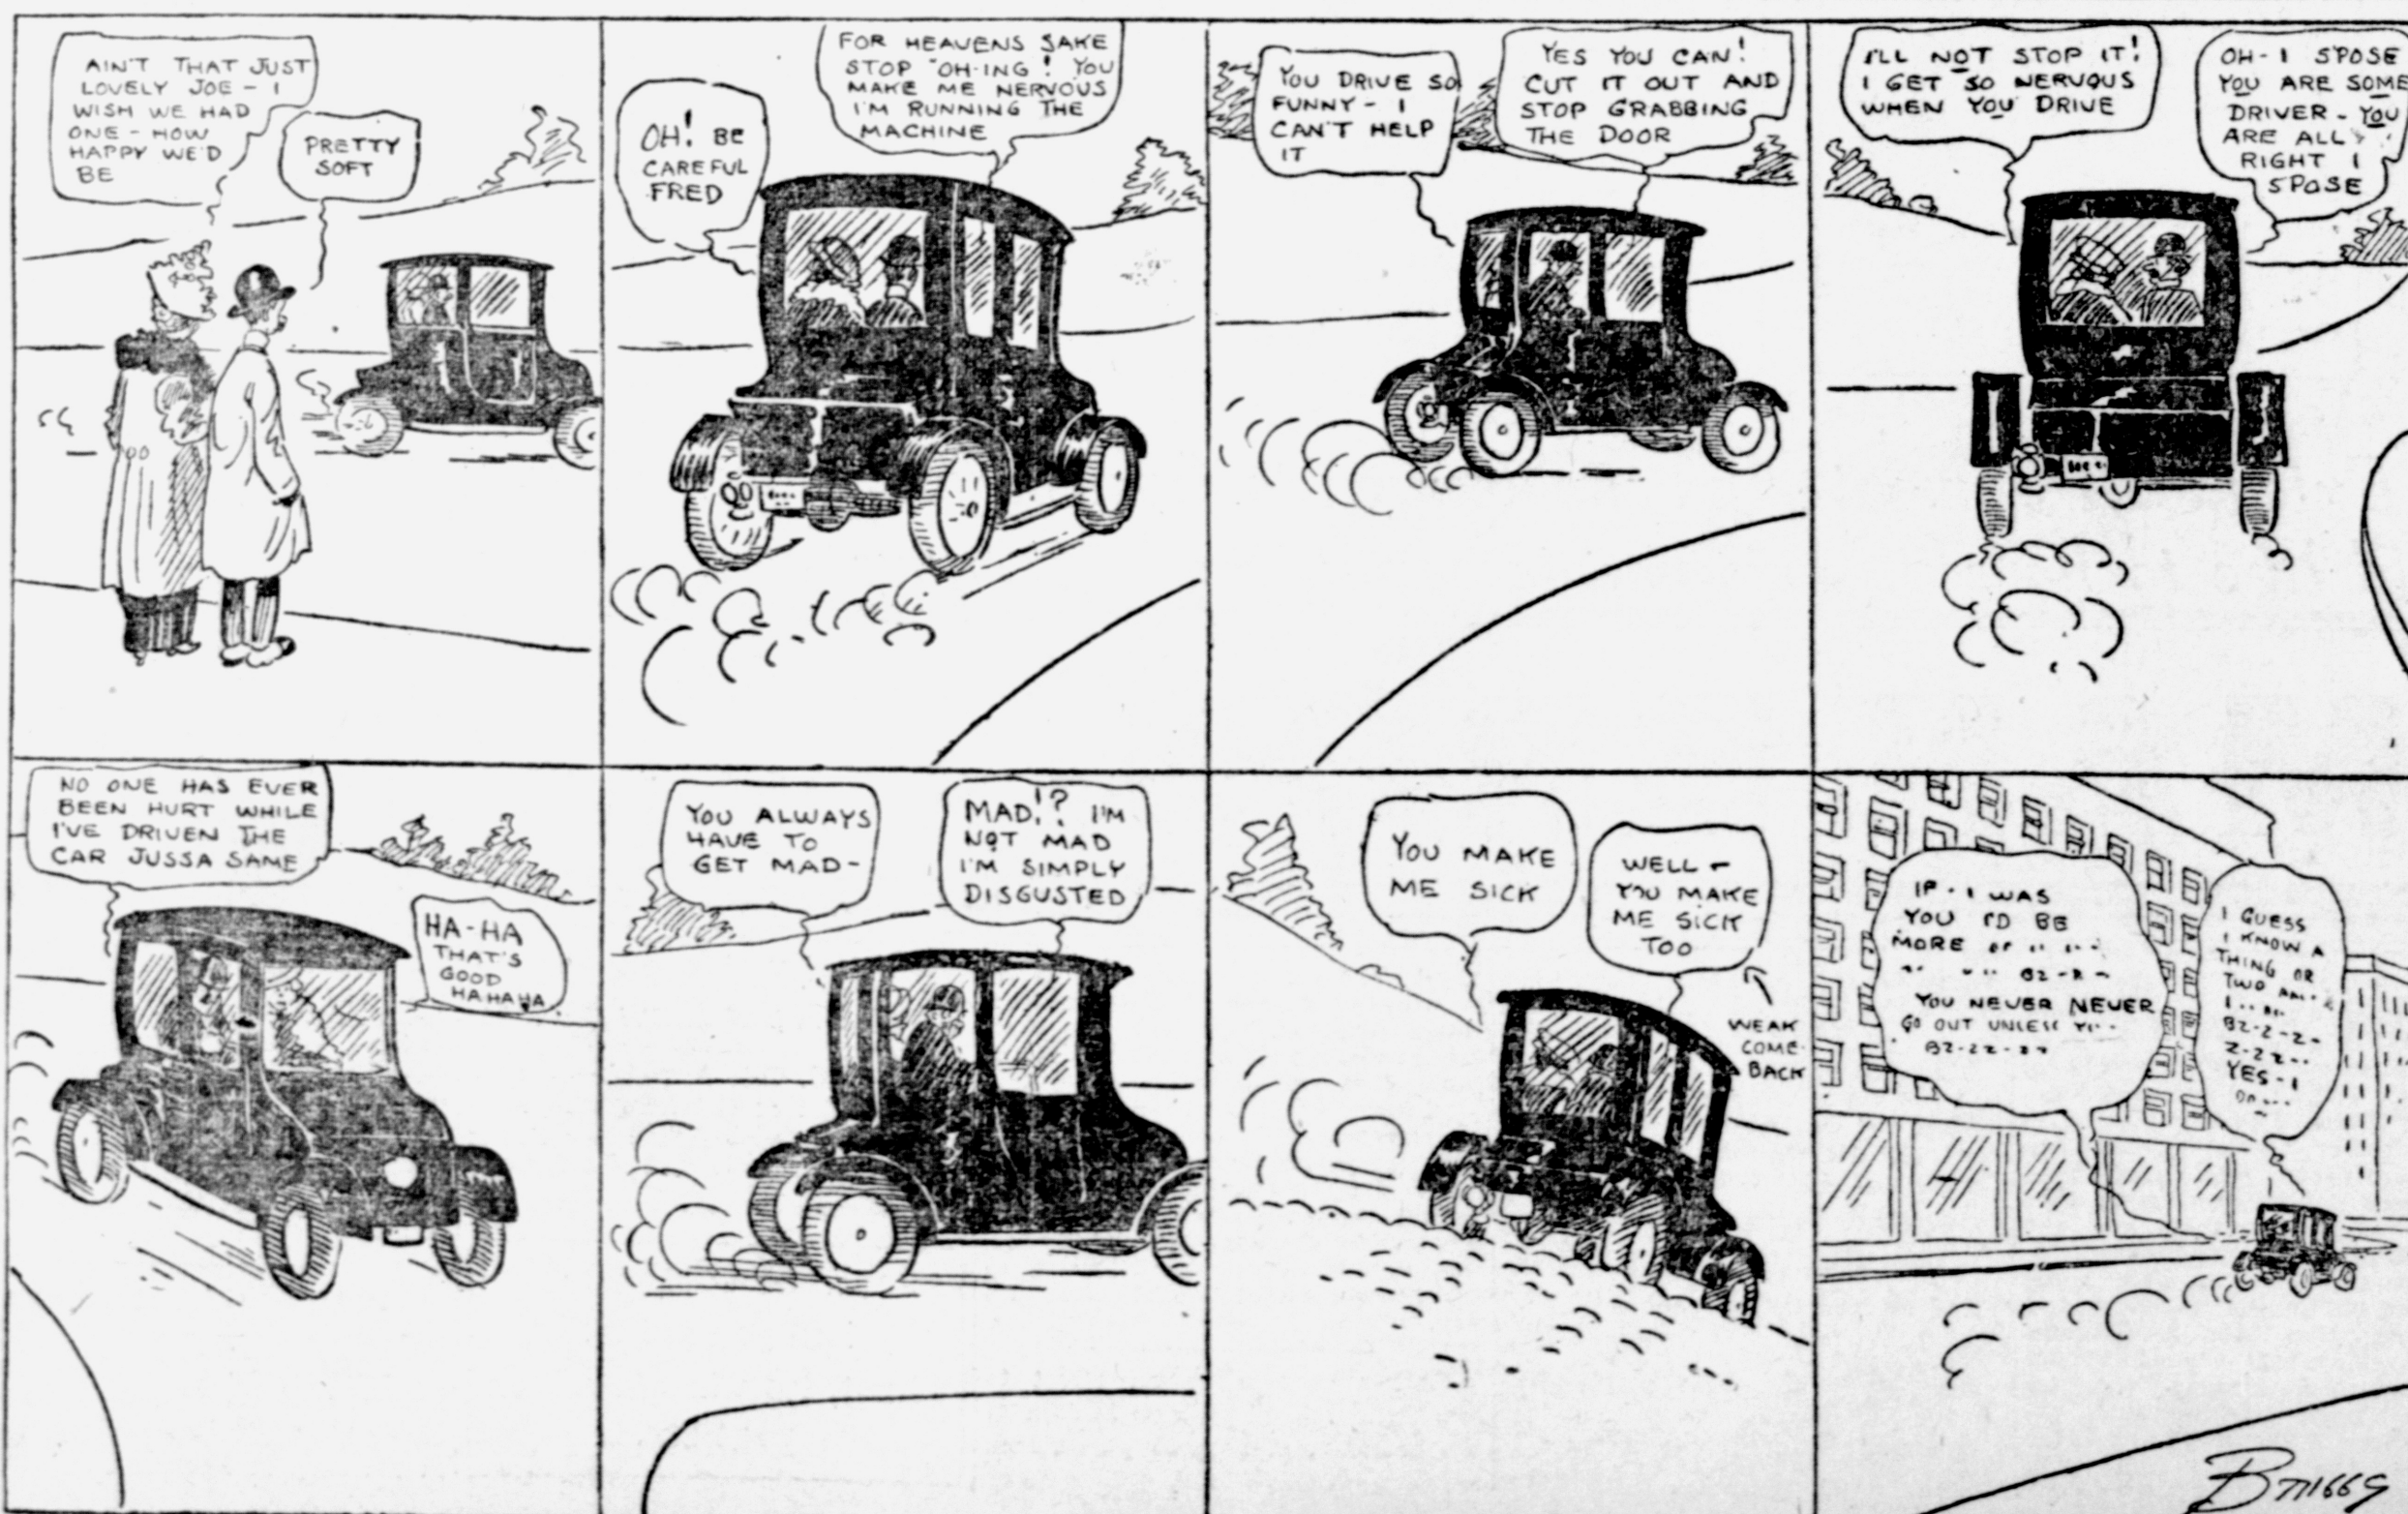

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, yesterday made three hits and stole three bases, while his noted contemporary, Mr. E. Collins made but two hits and stole but one pair of socks.

Incidentally, the Phillies rode rough shod over the Braves again and increased their lead.

New Use for Gall of Fishing Frog. The gall of the angler or fishing frog is used by Irish washerwomen to bleach linen, and in Iceland it is utilized for the manufacture of soap. This marine ogre, though nowhere common, seems more generally distributed around England's coasts than some authorities suppose. The angler is so called from the curious "rod and bait" formed by a modification of a ray of the front dorsal fin, which was formerly fancied to attract smaller fish, but the entire hideous body is a marvelous mimetic adaptation to the bottom of the sea, upon which the creature walks, using the pectoral feet for fins.

TURKS REPORTED
 LACKING SUPPLIES

ATHENS, Aug. 16.—In spite of optimistic statements from Constantinople, the Turkish ammunition supplies are nearing exhaustion as the result of repeated attacks by the allied forces at the Dardanelles. Private advices received here today said that the German and Turkish diplomats have renewed their efforts to obtain consent of the Balkan states for the passage of munitions to Turkey.

Errors in Shorthand.
 A young friend of mine is engaged in the study of Pitman's shorthand (writes a correspondent), and has just told me of a tragic occurrence which befell him at an examination. He felt that he had taken down the dictation all right, but when he came to transcribe the shorthand into "long hand" he came to one curved outline which entirely baffled him. It seemed to be the form for either "fish" or perhaps "efficiency," but either word was entirely superfluous to the sentence in which it was found. He left a blank in his transcript and went on to write the rest of the exercise, and time was nearly up when he returned to the troublesome outline. As he gave a hopeless sigh, gazing sadly at the outline, it suddenly slid away along the paper. Terror took possession of him. He thought his mind must be going. But it was only the outline. His sigh really had solved the problem. The outline was an eyelash which had fallen on the sheet. —Manchester Guardian.

SERB FAILURE TO SATISFY BULGARS MENACE TO ALLIES

Bulgaria May Not Help the Allies Following Refusal of Serbia to Cede Territory to Bulgaria

COERCION MIGHT BE EMPLOYED

Italy's Action in Opposing Serbians Real Stumbling Block to the Entente

(By J. W. T. Mason, written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The Serbian government has refused to meet Bulgaria's demand for the cession of Serbian Macedonia, and pessimism prevails among the allies concerning Bulgaria's entrance into the war on the side of the triple entente. It is apparent that despite the strong desire for Bulgaria's help the allies are not coercing Serbia into making the needed payment to Sofia.

To the present, Serbia has been treated as an equal partner in the anti-Teutonic alliance, and no advantage has been taken of the fact that she is a small nation unable to resist an ultimatum from her powerful protectors. How long this attitude of full respect for Serbia's sovereignty will last is a matter for the future; but if Bulgaria remains neutral, to the end, it will be only because the very end itself, the quadruple entente may refrain from riding rough shod over little Serbia.

Coercion could be applied at Nish, without difficulty by the entente powers, and Serbia could be compelled to do whatever extreme bidding might be dictated to her.

If the Turkish government is right in estimating that during the present week 50,000 additional British troops have landed along the Gallipoli shore and on the Saros coast, it is apparent that the allies are planning to push ahead for Constantinople regardless of the negotiations for Bulgaria's help. Bulgaria is believed to consider her own assistance indispensable for the capture of Constantinople. This, of course, is not the case. The allies can open a campaign in Thrace, to the west of Constantinople, along the route Bulgaria would follow any time they desire.

They are holding back because of the large loss of life than an assault against the famous Thracian defenses of Constantinople would cause. They prefer these casualties should be incurred by Bulgaria, and, in fact, it is not inappropriate that part of the great Slav empire above the rest of the world. But if Bulgaria does not come in, and if two other Balkan neutrals continue undecided, Constantinople probably will fall just the same, even though it be necessary to make the Levantine campaign the allies' principal offensive.

Italy's Actions Stumbling Block
 GENEVA, Aug. 16.—Italy's recent warnings to Serbia to keep her hands off in Albania constitute one of the most serious stumbling blocks in the allies' efforts to win Bulgaria to active participation in the war, it was learned here today.

Despite the promises made by the Anglo-French diplomats at Nish of expansion toward the Adriatic if she makes concessions to Bulgaria, Serbia fears Italy will refuse to sanction her occupation of territory along the Adriatic coast.

The allies have been told that unless Italy gives positive assurances that she will not attempt to thwart Serbia's ambitions, Serbia cannot even consider a request to cede Serbian Macedonia to Bulgaria.

Advices received here today from both Nish and Rome indicated that this was what Serbia meant in a recent official declaration that she was willing to negotiate with Bulgaria if other powers adopted a more conciliatory tone. The allied representatives are now expected to make representations to Rome. The belief prevails here that Italy will make no definite promises regarding disposition of Albania before the end of the war.

Chicago Grain Review
 CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Wheat was higher today because of a return of bad weather to the grain states. At opening prices of 1.07 7-8 and 1.05 represented over night advances of 1/4c and 3/8c. Later, the general buying that developed sent prices higher than opening by one cent and 3/8c.

Corn was up with wheat, the weather and scattered buying being leads toward higher levels. Prices at the start were up 1/4c over yesterday's close. Later prices were 7 1/2c and 6 3/4c, which were respectively

%c and 3/8c higher than opening. Oats acted with the other grains. Provisions opened lower on heavier receipts and went still lower later.

Advance Showing of Women's Fall Suits

The most complete assortment of Women's early Fall Suits ever assembled at this time of the year, and the biggest values, price considered. Jackets range from 30 to 34 inches long, plain tailored and braid trimmed models hold the center of the stage. The materials most popular are poplin, gabardine, serge, broadcloth and mixtures, colors of navy, subterranean green, African brown and black. Jackets are lined with a guaranteed peau de cygne lining, all sizes from 18 up. The price range is as follows

$13.50 up to $75.00

Our Ready to Wear Department offers special advantages to the woman whose size causes her difficulty in finding up-to-date garments of the new, snappy kind. It seems to be a foregone conclusion that because a woman is large she ought not want stylish clothes. This is doing her an injustice, and we have paid particular attention to having the choicest models made in the largest sizes and best colors. We have everything up to 50 bust.

TO COMMEMORATE WATER VICTORY

Thirty-five Year Fight for Adequate System Ends with Dedication Tomorrow

FIVE FORMER OFFICIALS SPEAK
Mayor A. A. Bentley Will Make the Closing Address of the Day's Program

Tomorrow afternoon marks the culmination of the fight for an adequate and suitable supply of water for the city, a fight which endured for thirty-five years. The new plant will be dedicated with a speaking and musical program to be held at Myrick park in the afternoon.

Remarks appropriate to the occasion, and speeches, including a history of the new water plant by Paul W. Mahoney, secretary of the special water committee, the recounting of the struggle for a good water system for the city by five former city officials, and a closing address by Mayor A. A. Bentley are included in the program issued for the day.

The dedication exercises will follow the inspection of the new plant in operation. The speaking will be interspersed with music furnished by a brass band, which will play in front of the city hall immediately preceding the formation of the city officials' automobile parade at 2:20.

Starting in 1881 with the first building and pumps owned by the city until December, 1913, the city of La Crosse took its water supply from the Mississippi river. Complaints were made at various times of the unsuitable condition of this supply for domestic purposes. Different administrations beginning with the administration of David Austin in 1888 endeavored to solve the problem. Mayor Austin was followed in office by John Dengler and then by Frederick A. Copeland. Under the administration of the last two more was done to solve the water problem than during any other period. Mayor Copeland discovered the proper source of supply. Under the administration of Ori J. Sorensen the matter was taken before the railroad commission. The railroad commission ordered the system that Mayor Copeland recommended and under the administration of John Dengler the recommendations of the railroad commission were carried out and the plant finally completed under the administration of Ori J. Sorensen.

HARD COAL RATE INCREASED 25 CENTS
WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The interstate commerce commission today declared a 25 cents per ton increase on prepared sizes of hard coal in and out of Chicago and other connecting mid-western points justified. Canceled increased pickle rates from Michigan. Canceled increased wool rates to Minnesota.

Perfumes Prevent Nausea.
A New York physician reports in the Medical Record that he has been very successful in preventing the nausea so apt to follow an anesthetic by the application to the nostrils of the patient of a pleasant perfume, preferably oil of bitter orange peel, as soon as the ether or chloroform is discontinued. He elevates the patient's head a little and turns it to one side, fastening a little adhesive to the tip of the nose and saturating this with cologne. Or if the patient has a mustache the perfume may be placed on that. He says the result is not always efficacious in preventing nausea after the anesthetic, but in many cases it is.

We all know that smelling salts are excellent in overcoming ordinary nausea and seasickness, and many people find them good for relieving the stuffiness in the nose caused by a cold, in the head.

Sarcasm Makes You Unpopular.
"What a nice girl Betty would be if only she weren't so sarcastic," a woman said the other day. Some girls seem to think that sarcasm adds to their charms, but though a man may be attracted by a girl who is quick at repartee and has always a smart answer ready, it very often happens that the sarcastic girl never marries, simply because men are afraid of that caustic wit of hers. Somehow or other there is always the uncomfortable feeling at the back of their minds that, while they laugh at her witty remarks about other people, they themselves may come in for the same treatment behind their backs. Brightness and a keen sense of humor are excellent to possess, but when girl uses the latter to say sharp and unkind things at another person's expense, she is on the right road to becoming unpopular.

Climate and Human Life.
"I mentioned a friend of mine," said Boswell, "who had resided long in Spain and was unwilling to return to Britain." Johnson—"Sir, he is attached to some woman." Boswell—"I rather believe, sir, it is the fine climate which keeps him there." Johnson—"Nay, sir, how can you talk so? What is climate to happiness? Place me in the heart of Asia, should I not be exiled? What proportion does climate bear to the complex system of human life?"

CATHOLICS URGED TO PRAY FOR PEACE AT TOLEDO MEETING

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 17.—Before the American Federation of Catholic Societies' fourteenth annual convention today, Apostolic Delegate Bonzano denied the report that he would offer a definite peace proposal for adoption by the federation. Bonzano called upon all the Catholics of the country to pray for peace and that America be kept out of the war.

Fred W. Mansfield, Boston lawyer, in an address on "Divorce" appealed to the Catholic lawyers of the country to exercise a more positive influence toward checking the divorce evil.

Other speakers were Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton N. J., known as "the father of the federation," Bishop Schrembs of the Toledo diocese, and John Whalen of New York, president of the society. In his sermon on Sunday morning, Coadjutor Bishop M. J. Gallagher of Grand Rapids, Mich., declared that America was facing a serious situation on account of the condition of the working-classes and the inequitable distribution of wealth and that unless the tide was stemmed a revolution was certain to follow.

GUNBOAT LOST IN STORM HEARD FROM

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 17.—The United States gunboat Sacramento, missing in a storm raging in the Gulf of Mexico due south of here, was located by wireless today and reported safe.

It was learned today that the Sacramento last night wired a request for a pilot. This indicated she was dangerously close to shore, according to experienced mariners. Tentative plans were made today to send ships in search of the steamer if she had failed to report by tonight.

INSURANCE FIRMS RETURNING TO STATE

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 17.—The Home Insurance company, New York, is making inquiries with a view to applying for admission to Wisconsin. This is one of the companies which left the Wisconsin field in 1907. The Penn Mutual and the Equitable have applied for licenses. The Wisconsin department has not yet made its report of the condition of the Equitable of New York.

ITALIAN RESERVISTS STONE 2 INTERNED GERMAN VESSELS

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—When 1,300 Italian reservists assembled to sail on the steamer Canonic, they started demonstrations against the German steamships Amerika and Cinnati, which are interned in the harbor. In a battle between the rioters and the police shots were exchanged and several policemen badly injured.

The reservists were aroused to action by the sight of a steward in a German uniform on the interned vessel. Stones and other missiles were hurled at the ships, breaking windows and deck fixtures and severely injuring members of the crews.
